Judges,

As I said in my first letter, I am honored to be your president. My pride in our Council members was validated on June 26, when Georgia's probate judges responded in a swift and competent manner to the U.S. Supreme Court's Obergefell v. Hodges decision. Our preparation for the decision--and implementation thereof, regardless of our personal beliefs--was positively noted by both local and national media. At the August Judicial Council meeting, Georgia Chief Justice Hugh Thompson commended our actions. My thanks to CPCJ Immediate Past President Chase Daughtrey and Attorney General Sam Olens for their leadership and coordination on the same sex marriage issue.

I must also thank the judges who participated in a CPCJ leadership retreat in June and a strategic planning conference in July. At these meetings, the Council set its priorities for the coming year, streamlined our committee structure and recruited new committee chairs, and developed strategies to enhance the profile and reputation of Georgia's probate courts.

At August's Judicial Council meeting, two pieces of proposed legislation requested by the CPCJ were approved as part of the 2016 Judicial Council legislative agenda. One measure would eliminate the current statutory requirement that probate courts issue marriage licenses on Saturdays. The other bill would increase the required bond amount for probate judges and their clerks from $25,000 to $100,000.

The Judicial Council also voted to support our state appropriations request to fund an executive director position for the CPCJ, despite ten superior court judges on the Judicial Council voting against the measure. The Administrative Office of the Courts has reassigned a member of its liaison division to serve our Council full time. While this is a welcome and needed move, it has resulted in some people questioning whether we should still request executive director funds from the state, including some superior court judges. I assure you that our Council would still benefit greatly from having a full time staffer, who can work independently of the AOC and cannot be assigned duties that do not benefit us. Please encourage your legislators to support our executive director request.

I look forward to seeing all of you October 5-9 in Savannah at the COAG fall conference. The AOC will provide training on a new caseload reporting form that all probate judges will be required to use, starting next year. This is one of many training sessions that will be extremely helpful to our membership, so I hope you will attend.

Very truly yours,

Dear Colleagues,

I trust your year is going well. We have seen some truly remarkable changes to our laws and indeed our society as a whole this year. The old constant of nothing remains the same seems to be the guideword.

The same is true of this newsletter. Once a typed newsletter without pictures or graphics, it is now a high tech web production. I trust this issue offers something of use to you. If you have something you want addressed, please let me know.

As we near the end of a training cycle, we'll see our first crop of certified judges. I hope to be among them. But I am reminded of how much there is still to learn and how much I rely on my colleagues for advice and experience. Or as my mother used to say, "It is most important to always know what you don't know."

Please continue to submit articles and pictures for The Gavel, especially your district meeting reports. Photos need to be large file size and/or resolution to be used, so keep that in mind and use the largest version when submitting. If you have any questions or concerns, please email me at candlerprobate@gmail.com or call at 912-685-2357.

Respectfully yours,

Judge Tony Thompson, Editor

Probate Judges Present “Legislator of the Year” Awards

The Council selected Sen. Tyler Harper (R-Ocilla) and freshman Rep. Bert Reeves (R-Marietta) for Legislator of the Year awards. Both legislators introduced and sponsored CPCJ bills during the 2015 legislative session that were signed into law.

Sen. Harper is chairman of the Senate Public Safety Committee and sponsored S.B. 62, which clarified probate court jurisdiction over game and fish violations. Lt. Gov. Casey Cagle was on hand for the award presentation to Sen. Harper at the annual Ocilla-Irwin County Legislative Lunch on May 26. Probate judges Ronnie McCurdy, Rooney Bowen and Chase Daughtrey attended the luncheon.

Rep. Reeves carried H.B. 119. The bill amended O.C.G.A. Code Section 24-12-21 by exempting probate courts from its requirements related to the disclosure of AIDS information when issuing an order to apprehend a person in need of a mental health evaluation. The law now allows a probate judge to sign an order requiring immediate medical help for mentally ill citizens who suffer from HIV/AIDS. Cobb County Probate Judge Kelli Wolk presented Rep. Reeves with his award at the Marietta Rotary Club on July 15.

You can find more information on these bills and other legislation affecting the judiciary by visiting <http://legislation.georgiacourts.gov/pages/home.jsf>.

In Our Thoughts

Probate Judge Betty Anderson of Wilcox County retired effective May 30th. She has served as Probate Judge since January 1, 1989. Judge Betty continues to have some health problems and asks that we continue to remember her in our prayers. We wish her well in her retirement and pray for a speedy recovery!

Senior Judge Joyce Wallace Hawkins of Cumming served nearly 40 years with the Probate Court of Forsyth County, 28 of which were as judge, prior to her retirement in 2004. Judge Hawkins died on June 15, 2015. She served as a church pianist/organist at the Pleasant Grove United Methodist Church for 65 years and was an active member of the Civitan Club for 25 years.

Welcome Catherine Fitch as new Executive Director of Council of Probate Court Judges of Georgia

The CPCJ now has an AOC employee dedicated full time to serving its needs. Catherine Fitch has been assigned to serve as executive director for our Council, until funding is secured for an independent executive director. Catherine was previously with the AOC's Governmental and Trial Court Liaison division, as a policy analyst for all classes of court. Before joining the AOC, Catherine was an associate with Willard & Sullivan. During legislative sessions, she was counsel to Georgia's House Judiciary Committee, under Chairman Wendell K. Willard. She has worked closely with CPCJ lobbyist Mark Middleton on probate matters during the past five legislative sessions.

Catherine is an honors graduate of Georgia State University College of Law, where she served on the law review board and the Jessup International Moot Court team. Her oldest daughter is a freshman at Georgia State University and her youngest daughter is a freshman at Johns Creek High School.

Still No Name

Judging from the response I got from the initial "trial run" of our new newsletter, many of you take matters "under advisement" for a long time or too many of you don't care what we call the newsletter or how often it's published...

Judge Smith (Irwin County) had two good suggestions: "The Gavel" or "The Georgia Probate Judges' Newsletter." Judge Cape (Barrow County) sent in twelve good suggestions: "Probate Times of Georgia," "The Judges Gavel," "The Probate Gavel of Georgia," "The Judges' Forum," "The True Oath," "The Probate Record," "The Executor's Oath," "The Probate Citation of Georgia," "Probate News and Letters," "The Probate Docket," "Georgia Probate News" and "The Probate Reporter."

9th District Probate Judges Meeting

Judge Mary Jo Buxton
Johnson County Probate Court

The Probate Judges of the 9th District held a meeting June 18 in Eastman at Sidetracks Cafe. Judge Al McCranie, Dodge County, hosted this event with Judicial Alternatives of Georgia sponsoring the meal. Kenneth Kight, co-owner of JAG probation, spoke about the new probation laws and suggested changes to our forms. Also, Michele Tedder of EZ Court Pay introduced their online credit/debit card payment system. Both presentations were excellent. Judge Mary Jo Buxton quickly went over other changes in the laws taking effect July 1. The judges enjoyed a time of round table discussions of “What would you do?”
